The Collaborative Research Committee of the Humanities Division invites colleagues from the College of Arts and Sciences and the broader university community to participate in a series of round table discussions built around the theme, Moral Traditions and Moral Revolution from African Antiquity to the African Diaspora.

All societies have always had an understanding of the essence of freedom and have always struggled for it, whether record history gives them recognition or not. Taking Kwame Appiah’s monograph, The Honor Code: How Moral Revolutions Happen, as its point of departure, this project will investigate the moral visions at the vanguard of the struggles of African peoples worldwide and throughout history.
