Department of Economics

The Department of Economics in the College of Arts and Sciences invites applications for a tenured position at the rank of Associate/ Full Professor with research interests in the area of growth and development. We seek outstanding applicants with a demonstrated track record of excellence in research and teaching. Successful candidates are expected to develop vigorous, extramurally funded research programs in their areas of expertise, actively participate in the Department's teaching and curriculum development at the undergraduate and graduate levels, and mentor undergraduate and graduate students. Evidence of interest and success in mentoring underrepresented students is highly desired.

Howard University, a culturally diverse, comprehensive, research intensive and historically Black private university, provides an educational experience of exceptional quality at the undergraduate, graduate, and professional levels to students of high academic standing and potential, with particular emphasis upon educational opportunities for Black students. Howard University is currently classified as an R2 research university with aspirations and actions underway to achieve R1 status within the next few years. It is a residential campus of approximately 10,000 students located in the heart of the nation's capital, Washington, DC.

The Department of Economics currently consists of 17 faculty members, conducting pure and applied research with specializations in labor, urban, international, and growth and development. It offers BA, MA, and PhD degrees in economics.
