MESSAGE FROM YOUR FLAGSHIP'S CAPTAIN

Dear COAS Students,

For some of you, you have completed your first semester at Howard, while for most of you, you have gained more knowledge on how to manage your time between your studies, extracurricular opportunities, and building new friendships.

Congratulations for successfully completing another semester at Howard, which puts you one step closer to graduating from this iconic university! Semester-by-semester, we are committed to improving your educational experience in the College of Arts and Sciences. That commitment was demonstrated by the creation of new positions in the COAS Office of Academic Student Affairs (ASA), which is under the leadership of Associate Dean Dr. Gladys M. Francis.

That office now also includes an Assistant Director of Student Affairs for Experiential Learning, Scholarships, and Career Readiness (Ms. Ciara Williams); an Assistant Director for Strategic Initiatives, Academic Assessment, and Communications (Ms. D'Asia Bethea); an Assistant Director of Student Affairs for Academic Advising, Admissions and Records (Mr. Eric Price); and an Administrative Coordinator (Ms. Michelle Armstrong). Those new staff positions and the excellent new colleagues who occupy them will enable us to provide COAS students with superior service.

Dr. Francis and her new Academic Student Affairs colleagues are planning to be much more innovative as a service provider to both assist you in graduating on time and enhance your experience while matriculating. For instance, we are building the experiential learning infrastructure to have a fourfold increase in the number of COAS students who have a study abroad experience.

The new experiential learning infrastructure will also support all COAS students taking an off-campus professional experience where students apply scholarly content that they have acquired in the classroom to real-world problem-solving opportunities in the public, nonprofit, and private sectors in the Washington, D.C. area and beyond.

Dean Patterson's Leadership Talk

Message from your Flagship's Captain

You should also anticipate improved and faster ombudsman service from our office. And when solutions to your problems exist beyond our office, we will assist in liaising on your behalf. We want your intellect and energy applied to your rigorous courses of study, not avoidable administrative-related challenges.

Although we will never be perfect, but we can have a vision of the superior service provider we want to be, have a plan for accomplishing that goal, and then consistently assessing how we are performing so adjustments can be made continuously. We also welcome your feedback to let us know where we have areas for additional improvement as well as what we are doing well.

Once again, congratulations on completing a successful semester, which means you have acquired additional knowledge and skills that help you succeed as global leader. I hope you took the time to relax and have fun over the holiday period.

Welcome back to campus and hope you will take advantage of some exciting initiatives I am honored to facilitate. Among others, it is my pleasure to bring back the passport drive that will allow all COAS freshmen, sophomores, and juniors to receive a free passport.

Excellence in Truth and Service,

Rubin Patterson, Ph.D.

Dean

Message from your Associate Dean

Dear COAS Students,

Since July 2022, it has been an honor to serve as your Associate Dean for Academic Student Affairs (ASA).

Our ASA Leadership Team looks forward to seeing you around our beautiful campus this spring! We are thrilled to be a part of your academic journey. Indeed, in the College of Arts and Sciences (COAS) you are part of a strong community that values academic excellence, career-readiness, global experiential learning, leadership, and diversity. We encourage a learning environment where we can all pursue our dreams and reach our highest potential.

Dean Patterson, the Leadership Team of the Dean's Office, our dedicated Department Chairs and faculty, Directors, Honors Program staff, and the COAS Student Council are eager to accompany you in your academic journey!

Reflecting on 2022, I want to take this time to applaud experiences that have nourished our understanding of the world, deepened our knowledge, provoked new connections, and challenged our critical thinking. Your dedication to public service, your creative stamina, and collaborative spirit are unmatched! I am honored to support the exciting intellectual and cultural community you create in our Flagship.

Some of you also experienced challenges that caused a considerable amount of strain during your studies. On behalf of our ASA team, I also want to extend our deepest sympathy to the COAS students who recently lost a loved one during their studies at Howard. If you feel that stress or any other form of distress is interfering with your academic work or social life, I encourage you to reach out for support. Self-care, empathy, and caring for one-another are also very important.

It has also been my pleasure to welcome four new staff members to our Office of Academic Student Affairs. I sincerely thank the Howard students, faculty, and staff who served on these Search Committees.

Stay engaged in our various ASA events and new opportunities.

We're here, we're ready! Welcome back to the Mecca, Bisons!

Warm wishes for a successful spring semester,

Sincèrement,

Ms. Ciara Williams

More About Me!

CIARA WILLIAMS

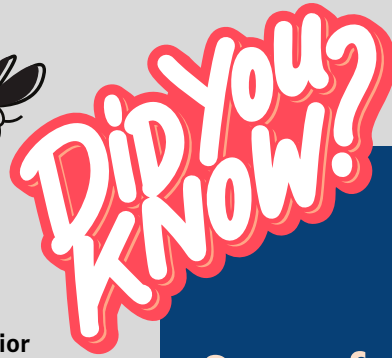

Hi Students! Happy New Year!

I am Ciara Williams, the new Assistant Director of Student Affairs for Experiential Learning, Scholarships, and Career Readiness in the Office of Academic Student Affairs in the COAS Office of the Dean. As I begin my first full semester at Howard, I am so excited to meet you all, bask in the HU Pride culture, and build relationships with leadership, faculty, and staff. Student support drives me every day; I look forward to building relationships with you all to cultivate space for mentorship and holistic support throughout your collegiate journey!

Before coming to Howard, I began my career in education as an educator for Prince George's County Public Schools before transitioning to higher education five years ago. As the Director of Professional Pathways at St. Mary's College of Maryland, I successfully led the development of a campus-wide career development program called LEAD Professional Pathways. From freshman to senior year, career exploration was embedded into each student's curricular and co-curricular college journey through career mentorship, required experiential learning, guaranteed internships/externships, career/grad coaching, evidence-based programming, and oversight of employer partnerships and outreach.

I am eager to bring my prior knowledge and experiences to support COAS undergraduate students in their career readiness, study abroad exchange programs, and scholarship application processes. I will develop internships, research experiences for undergraduates, co-ops, and volunteer engagement opportunities.

I am a proud native of Prince George's County, Maryland. I earned my bachelor's degree in Education from Spelman College in Atlanta, Georgia and a Master of Education degree in Higher Education Administration from Morgan State University in Baltimore, Maryland. I have always been an advocate for student success; I strive to create a place where all students can flourish in and beyond the classroom. Come visit me, I look forward to meeting you!

Some fun facts about me:

- I am a proud member of the #BeyHive
- Lover of napping
- Target is my happy place
- I do the happy dance when it's time to eat crabs

The "BIG Three"

Experiential Learning:

The COAS Office of Academic Student Affairs (ASA) strives to educate you to make meaningful contributions as citizens of a complex world. Our ASA team aims to expand your thinking and promote diversity of thought, civil discourse, and empathy through high impact academic and extracurricular activities. We are committed to increasing research success for a changing world by facilitating your participation in experiential learning opportunities nationally and globally. We are dedicated to developing strategic and impactful corporate and community engagement for you. We work to empower you to become future impactful leaders and to make you active participants in your educational experience. We also foster community engagement and meaningful involvement with our COAS alumni/ae.

Strategic Initiatives:

Our COAS ASA initiatives connect vision, objective, and critical strategies used to manage, direct, and further our short- and long-term goals. These initiatives aid in promoting strategic collaborations with important internal or external stakeholders and key personnel of Howard University. We are dedicated to creating ideas, developing concepts, and plans that advance Academic Student Affairs within COAS's strategic mission.

Advising:

We provide students with opportunities to meet individually with faculty and advising staff who support the development of their academic success. Through intentional encounters, valuable information is shared, and relationships are developed to ultimately help shape students' career trajectories.

Students in the College are encouraged to schedule a minimum of two advising sessions each semester. Advising is offered through academic departments and the Office of Undergraduate Studies (OUS).

Flagship Ambassador Program

The Flagship Ambassador Program is designed to holistically develop and enhance the leadership skills of students who are dedicated to promoting The Flagship of Howard University:

FALL SEMESTER REFLECTIONS

BY CYNTHIA EVERS, EDD

Now that the Fall semester has come to a close, looking back on the past several months of our return to in-person learning feels like an awakening of our Bison spirit and time-honored traditions. Simply put, we are overjoyed to be together and recognize that we are better together.

In the Division of Student Affairs, we continue to experience growth and improvement in supporting the needs of Howard students. Our team spent countless hours working hard to design and prepare for fall semester and the return of students to campus. And while there remains work to be done, this time of year offers a great opportunity for reflection. There are some moments that really stand out for me.

Move-In Days and Welcome Week marked the official start of the Fall semester, as we counted down to students' arrival. Seeing the excitement among our staff, as parents helped their sons and daughters unloaded their belongings to get settled into the residence halls, was a reminder that Howard is truly a special place.

HU STUDENT AFFAIRS HIGHLIGHTS

In those first weeks as I walked through The Yard and noticed students connecting with one another and enjoying the activities planned for them, many reunited with dear friends, while others formed new friendships. Their energy renewed my sense of purpose and spirit

The Pinning Ceremony solidified the core values of Howard University, as we committed ourselves to Excellence in Truth and Service. Howard traditions stand the test of time and become lifetime memories for us to share with generations to come.

I also appreciate the hard and intentional work of the HUSA leadership, Mr. and Miss Howard University, and other student organizations. They are leaving an excellent blueprint of success for others to follow and forge a path of their own. I am honored to work with them to advance the goals of the University.

Our student support services help to create a healthy environment for living and learning. The combined efforts of our departments enhance the student experience. Add to that, being named the #1 HBCU for LGBTQ+ students and the dedication of the new LGBTQ+ Center. We have many reasons to take pride in how far we have come.

And who can forget Homecoming 2022? What a joy it was to see so many current and former students come together for a week of celebrations, ultimately cheering our Bison football team to victory. It made the celebration even more memorable for everyone.

In addition, over these months, we found new and innovative ways to create enlightening experiences that also teach behaviors that typify the Howard Student. Our weekly "Chat and Chew" series is advancing conversations and building upon relationships that connect Howard leaders with students on topics of interest to them.

I am grateful for the opportunity to lead the Division of Student Affairs and work with a team of dedicated staff in fostering a positive environment for our students.

I want to extend best wishes to you for a joyous, peaceful holiday season filled with love and laughter as you spend time with family and friends.

Dr. Cynthia Evers

COAS Faculty Spotlight

As Professor and Chair of the Department of Physics and Astronomy, Quinton L. Williams, has been strengthening the department's academic and research programs since joining Howard in 2014. Prior to joining Howard, Dr. Williams served as Chair of the Department of Physics, Atmospheric Sciences and Geoscience at Jackson State University. Before coming to academia, he worked in industry at Lucent Technologies – Bell Laboratories in fiber optics and co-founded a venture capital backed photonics company in Atlanta. He has published over 40 research articles and a book chapter. At Howard, his research is focused on renewable energy; specifically, Li-ion batteries and advanced carbon nanomaterials.

As part of his life-long mission to educate, mentor and train underrepresented minority students in physics, Dr. Williams has produced five Ph.D. graduates in physics, supervised two Masters degrees and mentored well over thirty undergraduates and postdocs over his career. Dr. Williams is a Past-President and Fellow of the National Society of Black Physicists (NSBP). He received his Ph.D. and M.S. degrees in physics from the Georgia Institute of Technology and his B.S. degree in physics from Jackson State University.

Dr. Quinton L. Williams

In March 2022, Dr. Williams received an Excellence in Physics Education Award from the American Physical Society (APS). In April 2022, he led the Department of Physics and Astronomy to receive the APS Award for Improving Undergraduate Physics Education for 2022 – 2024 making Howard the first HBCU to receive this distinction of program excellence. Over his career, he has served on major national taskforces which have delivered seminal reports for increasing diversity in physics.

In Nov. 2022, Dr. Williams accompanied a group of Howard University students to the NSBP Annual Conference in Charlottesville, VA. Students presented scientific research and networked with other students and professionals in physics to encourage them to reach their highest potential.

COAS Student Spotlight

The College of Arts and Sciences has afforded me the tools necessary to grow academically and as a leader which is particularly displayed in the fact that I made the Dean's List. The college has provided a wonderful support system for all its students including myself which is one of the main reasons I choose Howard University. I knew it would provide me with a sustainable environment to push me to become a successful black woman.

My advisor has been one of the most valuable resources provided by Howard University. Through Howard's guidance and attention to students I was able to navigate my first year of college and was able to maintain a 3.9 Cumulative GPA whilst being involved in different organizations and leadership roles.

The Alpha Phi Chapter of Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority, Incorporated

The Alpha Phi Chapter of Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority, Incorporated encourages and promotes high scholastic attainment, develops leadership and individual talents, emphasizes the value of poise and dignity, as well as providing an atmosphere in which friendships and social contacts may be developed.

Over the past year, Alpha Phi's past members have worked diligently to continue traditions and service activities such as Trick-or-Treat for Cans, volunteering at food kitchens such as Loaves and Fishes, and conducting other campus engagement events to fulfill our purpose of "greater service, greater progress". As we end our centennial year, we can proudly say that Alpha Phi has brought new energy to Howard University.

As of November 9, 2022, the Alpha Phi chapter introduced 12 new members to the campus—"12 Rays of Light". The ladies jumped straight into serving the community by participating in the "Hunger to Serve" event coordinated by the ladies of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Incorporated, wrapping and providing gifts for the Chapel Assistant's Bison Babies, and serving food at the most recent Late Night Bite. Going into the spring semester, we have many service and social events in store to ensure a prosperous future for both the Alpha Phi Chapter and the Howard community as a whole. Specifically, we are excited for our charter week events this upcoming April. We want to thank everyone who has supported us thus far. Stay tuned for more from the Alpha Phi Chapter!

Student Org Spotlight

Howard University's African Students Association was conceived in 1985 and from then on, the Organization's mission has been to celebrate continent-born, international, and US-born African descendants from all over the diaspora. Last year was big and after an amazing programming year, HUASA won Cultural Organization of The Year and Organization of The Year in 2022!

African Students Association

Now under the PROSPER administration, one of ASA's main goals has been to commemorate more regions of Africa on our campus. Our regional chairs have been hosting events and connecting with members from their region in hopes of building inclusivity and representation within the organization.

The first-ever urban modeling organization on Howard's campus, Genesis, was founded under ASA in 2021 and our models come in all shapes, sizes, shades, and identities; further bringing the diaspora together. Genesis hosted GENweek in October, kicking off auditions for the second class of models. ASA has also kicked off our mentorship program for the year and Newbies to Pros: A professional development program that ensures our members are prepared for the career world. Our 2022-23 Ambassador Program is now active and a new group of interns is shadowing our executive board

From our boisterous monthly General Body Meetings to an East African session teaching us how to write Ge'ez letters, our events have been enlightening! ASA also continues to host monthly community service events. We made "Kare Kits" for women in the community and a held bagged lunch stand in a local park. ASA truly loves the community and looks forward to giving back any chance we can get!

To close last semester, ASA hosted our 14th Annual Mr. & Miss. Afrique Pageant: Return of the Star, inspired by the stolen Great Star of Africa. It was truly a night to remember and the Star was indeed returned home as we crowned our new Mr. & Miss. Afrique. In the end, the Fall semester wrapped up perfectly with a promise of an exciting spring semester. On behalf of all of the PROSPER ASA executive board, we thank you so much for tuning in and we are ready to prosper with you this semester!

Honors Program Spotlight

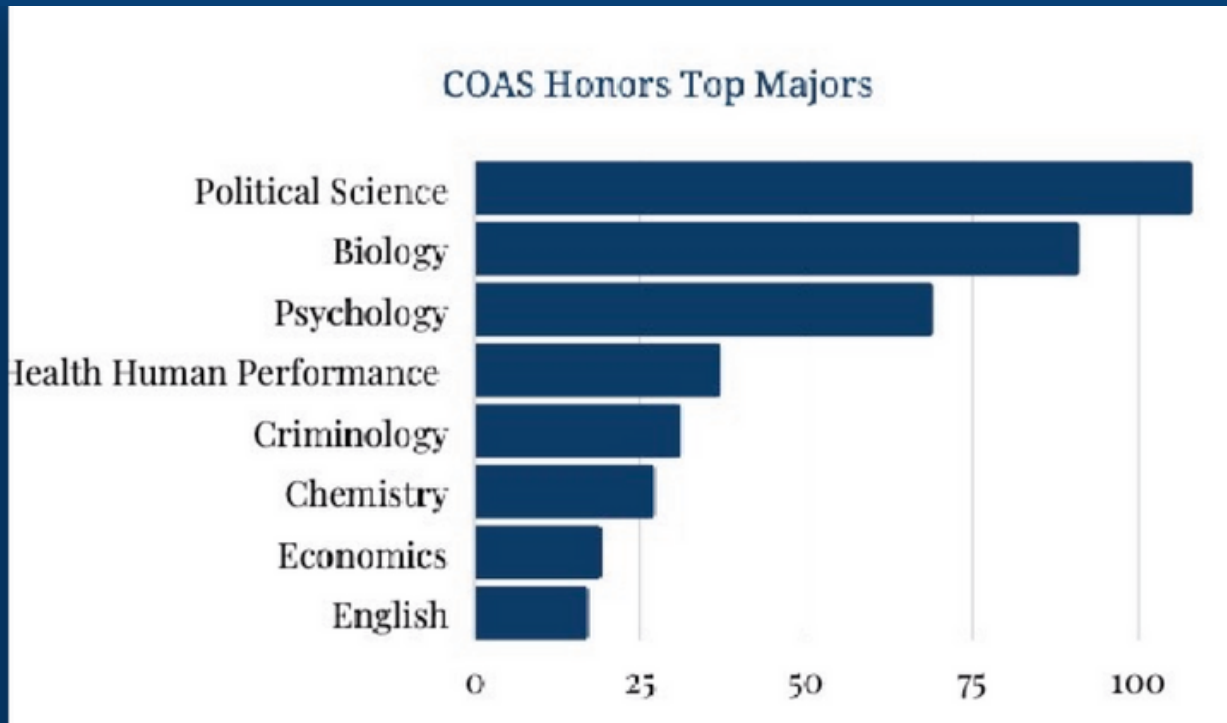

COAS Honors Program Mission

Since its establishment in 1957, the Honors Program in the College of Arts and Sciences has offered students of high academic potential a unique opportunity to extend the intellectual horizons that a liberal arts education affords by providing students with an intellectually challenging and rewarding course of study; preparing them for graduate and professional school through their experiences with independent research; and involving them in extra-curricular and extra-university activities.

Within the context of these activities, our program encourages academically advanced scholars to adopt fully the University's core values: Truth, Service, Excellence, and Leadership.

COAS Honors Program

Programmatic Points of Pride Fall 2022

- Increasing the honors-designated course offerings from General Education requirements to honors-only major courses for every Honors program student in COAS.
- Establishing Honors Faculty Fellow program for COAS Faculty, who are actively involved in the COAS Honors programming
- Rebuilding the community post-COVID with open access to the redesigned Honors Program lounge for studying, student-focused engagement workshops, and student-led events and programming.
- Providing weekly workshops designed to provide information to students in developing their growth mindset towards their senior thesis development and identifying and focusing on areas of research, applying for and securing a Study Away/Study Abroad experience, preparing for internships, fellowships, and employment opportunities and continuing their education as a post-graduate student.
- Establishing a COAS Honors Alumni Network to engage alumni to share their academic and professional journeys with current students; facilitate a continuous culture of connection to the program and the university; participate in a structured mentorship program, and assist in the development of a program-based scholarship.

Program Goals for Honors Students - Four Points of Honor

- Developing your curricular strategy
- Aligning Study Abroad/Study Away to your future
- Serving through your strengths
- Developing your engagement strategy
