

Dr. Terri Dilmore

Dr. Dilmore is a new faculty member joining the department of psychology as an Associate Professor. She received an Honors B.Sc. in Psychology from Trent University, a PhD in Medical Science from the University of Calgary, and a PhD in Clinical Psychology from Duquesne University.

Dr. Dilmore is a licensed clinical psychologist where she is focused in the forensic evaluation of justice-involved youth, with a particular focus on youth of color.

Get To Know Dr. Dimore:

What are your research interests?

My research interest involves research in juvenile justice focused on racial identity and characterizing complex, multi-generational trauma affecting youth and designing interventions to effectively address their psychological health needs.

What courses will you be teaching this Fall?

This semester I will be teaching doctoral courses in family therapy, personality assessment, and clinical skills.

What are you looking forward to most this academic year?

This school year, I look forward to meeting Howard faculty and students, creating opportunities to partner with others who have similar interests, and joining the Howard family!