

TEAM TURE

Kwame Ture aka Stokely Carmichael was a civil rights activist, writer, and orator. During his freshman year as a philosophy major at Howard University, he participated in his first Freedom Ride. In 1966, Ture gave a speech where he first spoke the words "Black Power," calling for cultural, political, and economic self-determination for Black people around the world.

He joined the Black Panther Party and journeyed around the world to visit with revolutionary leaders. Ture helped to redefine African American identity--as well as Black identity around the globe--with his revolutionary proclamation that Black is beautiful.
